

Agreement

Company and Employee agree as follows:

1. All information in any form (hereinafter "Confidential Information") developed by or for Company in the course of any aspect of its business, as now or hereafter conducted, is the property of Company and may not be used or disclosed to others by any present or former employee of Company unless Company has authorized such use or disclosure or unless it has been determined that the information has become part of the public domain without breach of any contractual or other obligation of such employee. Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing definition, and for purposes of illustration only, Company's Confidential Information includes:

- (a) Inventions, discoveries and improvements, whether patentable or unpatentable, including trade secrets;
- (b) Geophysical, geological, well information and any other data, including interpretations thereof or processes relating thereto, relating to the existence of, exploration for or the development of oil, gas or other potentially valuable raw material, product, mineral or natural resource of any kind;
- (c) Any other information having present or potential commercial value to the Company;
- (d) Confidential Information of any kind belonging to others but licensed or disclosed to Company for use in any aspect of its business; and
- (e) All Confidential Information whether or not designated or marked as such through use of such words as "classified," "confidential" or "restricted."

2. (a) Company and Employee agree that the patent applications and unpatented inventions, if any, made by Employee prior to entering the employment of Company which are listed at the bottom of this agreement shall not be included within the operation of this agreement.

(b) All inventions, discoveries and improvements, patentable and unpatentable, useful to any aspect of the business of Company or its affiliates, conceived by Employee either alone or with others, during the period of Employee's employment by Company, together with all notes and records kept by Employee in connection therewith or entrusted by Company to Employee, and all rights in and under all United States and foreign Letters Patent issuing thereon, shall be the exclusive property of Company or anyone it designates whenever said inventions, discoveries and improvements arise out of Employee's services to Company or its affiliates or arise out of information and experience gained by Employee in Employee's employment by Company.

(c) Employee shall, both during and after Employee's employment by Company, do all lawful things necessary to permit Company or its nominee to have full ownership of said inventions, discoveries and improvements, including, but not limited to: promptly informing Company thereof; avoiding unauthorized disclosure to others of said inventions, discoveries and improvements or other Confidential Information, the possession of which by Employee arises out of Employee's employment by Company; and signing proper papers, such as patent applications, assignments and the like submitted by Company at Company's expense.

(d) Employee shall, both during employment by Company and for a reasonable time thereafter, cooperate to the extent and in the manner requested by Company in the prosecution or defense of any patent claims or any litigation or other proceeding involving any invention, discovery, improvement, process, trade secret or any other kind of Confidential Information covered by this agreement; provided that all expenses incurred directly at Company's request shall be paid by Company.

(e) Employee is not obligated to assign to Company Employee's rights in an invention for which no equipment, supplies, facility or trade secret information of Company was used and which was developed entirely on Employee's own time, and (i) which does not relate to the business of Company or to Company's actual or demonstrably anticipated research or development, or (ii) which does not result from any work performed by Employee for Company.

3. The Confidential Information covered by this agreement may or may not be reduced to writing or contained in or on some other medium (hereinafter collectively "Confidential Material") such as reports, records, maps, drawings, designs, photographs, software, notebooks, magnetic tapes and recordings. All Confidential Material developed by Employee in the course of this employment either alone or with others, and the copyright therein, shall be the exclusive property of Company. Except as required by law or by the performance of Employee's duties to Company, Employee will not use or disclose Confidential Information to others either during or after this employment; Employee will not make, or permit others to make, or possess except when and so long as required for the discharge of Employee's employment duties, any copy, abstract or summary of any Confidential Material, and at the voluntary or involuntary termination of this employment, Employee will deliver to Company all Confidential material including all copies, abstracts and summaries thereof.

4. This agreement shall constitute the entire contract between Employee and Company or an affiliate and supersedes all existing agreements between them whether oral or written with respect to the subject matter hereof. No change, modification or amendment of this Agreement shall be of any effect unless in writing signed by Employee and by an officer of Company. In particular, and not by way of limitation, no policy, publication, practice, procedure or communication of Company and no change or changes from time to time in Employee's salary or duties shall be considered a change, termination or waiver of this agreement or of any of its provisions.

5. This agreement shall extend to and bind the assigns, successors and heirs of Employee. This agreement may be assigned in whole or in part by Company to an affiliate. As used in this agreement, the term "affiliate" shall mean the parent of Company, if any, or any company of which Company or its parent owns directly or indirectly 50% or more of the shares entitled to vote at an election of directors, and the term "parent" shall mean any company which owns directly or indirectly 50% or more of the shares entitled to vote at an election of directors of Company.

6. Employee may terminate this employment at will on fifteen (15) days' notice to Company. Company may terminate such employment at will (i) at any time upon fifteen (15) days' notice to Employee, or (ii), at Company's election, at any time upon paying Employee one half (1/2) month's salary; and provided that Company may terminate such employment at any time for cause without payment of unearned salary.
